

***** SECOND CALL FOR PAPERS *****
XLII Latin American Computing Conference (CLEI 2016)
Valparaíso, Chile
10-14 October 2016
<http://www.clei.org/clei2016>

** PURPOSE

CLEI is the main yearly Latin American informatics and computer science forum for exchanging ideas, experiences and research results among researchers, practitioners, and students. CLEI 2016 will consist of nine (9) thematic symposia and several keynotes, workshops, tutorials, and panels.

CLEI 2016 calls for papers reporting results of a theoretical nature and/or practice that advance the state of the art or present relevant applications or cases in the areas of interest of the symposia or associated events. It aims for a mixed academic and industrial audience.

** IMPORTANT DATES

Paper submission deadline: May 15, 2016
Notification of acceptance: July 12, 2015
Final version submission: August 16, 2015

** INFORMATION FOR PAPER SUBMISSION

Articles can be written in Spanish, Portuguese or English, and should be sent in PDF format prior to May 15, 2016 through the CLEI 2016 website (www.clei.org/clei2016) using the EasyChair platform.

Submitted papers must present original research results or relevant experience reports, and should not be published or under evaluation for other conferences and/or journals. An article can be sent to only one symposium or associated event. Submitting the same article to several symposia or associated events will be basis for rejection.

Submitted papers should not exceed 12 pages, including figures, references and an abstract of 150 words in some official language of CLEI 2016 (English, Spanish, or Portuguese). All submissions must have an abstract in English, and must be formatted according to the IEEE standard referenced in the CLEI 2016 website.

Submitted papers must be substantial intellectual contributions of the authors, and follow anti-plagiarism practices set out in the CLEI Authors Behavior Code (Código de Conducta de Autores de CLEI, www.clei.org/index.php/reglamento/codigo-de-conducta-para-autores-

ï The final program and the proceedings will only include papers with at least one author registered in the AUTHOR category of the conference before final version submission deadline.

ï A selection of the best papers presented at the CLEI 2016 symposia will be fast-tracked for publication in selected journals, including the CLEI Electronic Journal (www.clei.org/cleiej) and Electronic Notes in Theoretical Computer Science (www.entcs.org); the journals list is growing as of this time. Authors of invited articles must submit a version, in English and improved and expanded (at least 30%), to undergo the journal evaluation process.

ï Articles accepted and presented at the symposia of CLEI 2016 will be indexed and published by IEEE Xplorer digital library (pending). No-shows will not be published; presentation by non-authors must be authorized case-by-case by the general program chairs.

** INFORMATION FOR TUTORIALSÍ PROPOSALS

CLEI 2016 invites the submissions of proposal for half-day or full-day tutorials, to comprehensively introduce or present state-of-the-art for a particular topic, for an industrial, academic or mixed audience.

The tutorial proposal should be sent in PDF format, through the EasyChair platform, including the following information:

- Title of the Tutorial
